

THE EVENING CRITIC.
ESTABLISHED AUGUST, 1868.

Weather Indications.
For the middle Atlantic States, fair weather, winds mostly northwesterly, stationary temperature, stationary or higher barometer.

Special Weather Bulletin.
The special weather report of the Chief Signal Officer announces that the fair weather is indicated for the Gulf and South Atlantic States for to-morrow.

Prof. Bated on Lunar Influences.
Prof. Spencer F. Baird, of the Smithsonian Institution, recently wrote as follows in answer to a letter of inquiry from a gentleman residing in Tippah County, Miss.:

"In reply to your inquiry of May 11, I have to say: 1st, That a measured base line across a valley (or elsewhere) does not vary in the twenty-four hours, or in any other known period. 2d, That the eruption of the geysers in the Yellowstone region has not been observed to have any relation to the position of the moon, or to any lunar or solar period of time. Geysers or hot-springs are usually intermittent, but in different localities they have very irregular or unequal periods, some returning every seven, eight, or nine hours, some every thirty or thirty-five hours, etc., pointing evidently to a gradual accumulation of pressure in subterranean chambers—periodically relieved by overflow or violent steam expulsion. 3d, That extremely minute variations of the magnetic needle have been traced to the solar day, but doubtfully (though possibly) to the lunar period. 4th, That earthquakes have not been found to observe the conjunctions of the sun and moon, or to follow any lunar period, although much attention has been given to this point, owing to frequent theories of a lunar tidal wave in the earth's crust."

St. John's Cadets.
The St. John's Academy cadets, of our neighboring city, Alexandria, have returned after a pleasant and extended trip to the Maryland counties. This excellent and popular institution is under the charge of Mr. Carney, a brother of the well known correspondent of the Baltimore Sun. On their return the Catholic cadets, wearing side arms, marched, under the command of Lieut. Morgan and Seawell, from the courthouse to the Church of St. Aloysius, where the front pews were assigned them. After the services, which were impressive, the pastor, Rev. Father Gaffney, advanced to the chancel and addressed them specially. He exhorted them to be Christian soldiers, to put on the arms of justice, and endeavor to conquer in the great battle with the enemy of souls. They were mostly from Virginia, a State renowned for the wisdom and courage of her people, and he hoped they would emulate the example of their countrymen, Washington, and Lee and Jackson, love peace and strive to keep it, but be ever ready, when their country should need their services to repel invasion, to defend her. In conclusion, he bade them farewell, hoping to see them again next year, and invoked upon them the blessing of God, who, he trusted, would give them a safe and happy return to their school and to their homes.

The Alexandria Gazette says: "The drill and discipline of the cadet corps drew the many ensembles in Leonardtown, and will probably lead to considerable accessions to the academy from St. Mary's County."

Going Behind the Returns.
The Baptists of the dark colored line of Alexandria are justly indignant about an alleged Louisiana transaction in connection with the church festival and balloting for a prize of jewelry "to the most popular lady in the congregation."

The jewelry consisted of a complete set of earrings and brooch included. The result was, as reported by the tellers, that Emma Johnson received 114 and Lou Tancill 88. The announcement created much surprise and the friends of the eighty-eighth competitor claim that it was a seven to eight business, and assert that the ballot-box was "stuffed." There is blood on the face of Alexandria's fair moon by reason of the charges, and a waking up of the church on the subject of dispute is imminent.

Attempts at Suicide.
Lewis Foster, while on the ragged edge of a sumptuous spree, attempted to hang himself with his suspenders in a cell at the Eighth precinct station-house last night, but was discovered before he slipped his cable, and was cut down.

Kate Reagan, a young woman residing at a house on Ohio avenue, made an attempt to shuffle off the mortal coil also, using laudanum as an agent to hasten her exit from this into an unexplored region. The friendly services of a stomach pump set her right side up with care again, and it is probable that she has since repented of her folly. She had been drinking something, prior to the exploit, stronger than laudanum.

Our Zealous Friends.
We received yesterday a postal card announcing that Mrs. L. O. Freeman, of this city, was in need of relief from the charitable. The author of the same is evidently over-zealous, as the husband of the lady writes us: "The article in yesterday's issue, headed 'An Appeal to the Charitable,' does Mrs. L. O. Freeman, of 621 Third street northwest, a great injustice. She is not an object of charity, but sympathy, owing to her intense suffering. Dr. Smith Townsend has been attending her, and she has so far recovered as to be out. The release referred to was only an attack of neuralgia, which returns more severe at intervals. She expects to start for Western North Carolina, in a few weeks, to recuperate her health."

The Magnificent Free-Lover.
The inhabitants of Sherman's Row, the locality in which Burlington, the magnetic free-lover was assaulted, are testing the question of what can be done to protect a child from its parent. The little boy Willie is now under the care of a neighbor, and declares that he would sooner live in the streets than return to his father. Mr. Burlington is undoubtedly legal guardian of the children, until the pending divorce suit shall be settled, but his cruelty, as alleged, justifies the desire to keep the boy away from his father. It is generally supposed that a second attempt to take the boy forcibly from Sherman's Row will be resisted by violence, and that the result may be bad for the free-lover.

A Wife Assaulter Sentenced.
As will be noticed in another column, J. Paul Brown, with some weeks ago cut his wife with a razor and then attempted to kill himself, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for two years—a sufficient time for the cooling off of jealousy and wrath, it may be supposed. Brown had been separated from his wife, and on the day of the killing he induced her to go to his room, under the pretense of talking over family matters, and then proceeded to hack her throat with a razor and then to put an end to his own life with the same weapon. As it happened, the wounds of the wife were not mortal, and the husband goes to the penitentiary.

Prentiss' Concentrated Lemonade (pure lemon juice) for lunches, &c.

Marriage Licenses.
Marriage licenses have been granted to Joseph Giacchetti and Julia Lohr, Wm. N. Leonard and Mattie F. Leonard.

Budd Johnson, a negro boy, was sentenced to sixty days this morning by Judge Snell, for stealing five silver dollars from Mary Shannon.

Mrs. Sorrensen, who made a target of Constable Hubbel, was in the Police Court today, trying to have her personal bonds continued until the case comes up.

THE END NOT YET.

Mother Shipton's Prophecy Not to be Fulfilled To-morrow, at Least So May Vennor and the Signal Office.
"Hello up there!" shouted the business manager of The Critic, to the editorial room this morning, "our thermometer has burst; do you get anything from the Signal Office to account for it?"

"No," replied the news editor calmly; "but Mother Shipton's prophecy of the destruction of the world falls due to-morrow. Perhaps the old lady is beginning to get her work in."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed the city editor, agitated, "you don't mean that as a fact? Why, I had my life insured only yesterday."

"Can't help it," replied the sober-faced manipulator of telegrams, the shears, and paste-brush; "the result of the prediction may be looked for, and that settles it. I thought the warning I gave you yesterday against hasty investments had had its effect."

While the above conversation was going on, the timid young gentleman who works up fires and things suggested that if the end was as near as Mother Shipton had predicted, it would be well to get out and look after the facts, Titt Currie making a point to get all the news of important events in advance.

He was, therefore, instructed to hunt it up. It was very warm when he started out, and, not caring to exercise his limbs to too great an extent, he dropped into the nearest telephone station and called up

THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER.
"Hello! signal office!" he shouted.
"Hello!" was the response.

"Mother Shipton predicts that the world comes to an end to-morrow. Do you know whether there is reason for us to expect to be speedily roasted?"

In a harsh guttural voice came the stereotyped answer: "Indications for to-morrow: For the Middle Atlantic States, fair weather, variable winds, mostly northerly, higher barometer; near the coast, higher temperature. For the South Atlantic States, fair weather, variable winds, mostly westerly, stationary temperature, followed by rising barometer. For the—"

"Cut her short please," broke in THE CRITIC at this juncture. "Get down to the facts in the case in question. Do you note any unusual changes in the temperature?"

"Well, it is hot as Hades (according to the revised edition) in this vicinity, but there are no unusual changes noted at this time. Of course there may be at some time during the night a great revolution of nature, but we have no indication of it now. We are not in the least disturbed up here."

THE CRITIC, not satisfied, telegraphed to PROFESSOR VENNOR on the subject. His response was as follows:

OTTAWA, CANADA, JUNE 18, 1881.
Editor EVENING CRITIC, Washington, D. C.: I am not apprehensive that anything very unusual will occur to-morrow, although Madame Shipton has seen it set that day for a general wind-up of subterranean affairs. There will be heavy showers in Canada to-morrow and hurricanes in the Western States. The District of Columbia will have fine weather if it don't rain.

H. C. VENNOR.

It may be that some people consider that THE CRITIC has taken unnecessary trouble in working this matter up. Perhaps so, but the Signal Office would not have thought of it. The Signal Office has received a very fair offer, however, from an Alabama gentleman, who has perfected a scheme which, in his mind, will be valuable in the matter of weather predictions, and a saving to the Government in the matter of expenses. It is a perpetual almanac which will give the weather reports for all time to come. The author's theory is based upon the fact, the Goat, the Bull, nor the Virgin, nor the Archer, nor any superstition that may exist about the weather now-a-days. He claims that everything that exists has a centre and everybody who has a motion revolves around that centre. It takes the earth, he maintains, 365 days to revolve around its centre, and the weather upward of 580 days to revolve around its centre also, causing an irregular occurrence of the weather in relation to the seasons of the year. All this, it may be perceived, is as clear as mud, but the world will not suspend operations to-morrow if the Signal Office knows itself, and the officials "think it do."

F. Tharp's New Store.
Six F street, the place to get a good article of wine, brandy, whiskey, or anything in the liquor line, at fair prices. Goods reliable. All in want of anything in his line should give him a call.

Boat Race This Evening.
There will be a two-mile four-oared race between members of the Chesapeake Club this evening, at 6:30 o'clock, to determine the selection of a crew to represent that club in the Richmond regatta. Messrs. W. E. Williams, Jas. Young, W. A. Smith, Marshall Wallach, Lake, Olds, Henderson and Zeigler will participate. Mr. Kintner will probably enter the single-screw race at the Richmond regatta.

Messrs. Douglas, White, Page and Mauder will represent the Annapolans at Richmond, and Messrs. Wheeler, Bailey, McKenney and Cropley will probably form the Potomac's crew.

Five Shoes.
Ladies, misses, and children's shoes of the finest make and perfect fit, are always guaranteed at Gurnell's, corner of Seventh and I streets. E. C. Gurnell's shoes a specialty.

Reckless Drivers.
Yesterday afternoon a little white girl named Johanna Burger was run over on O street, between Fourth and Fifth streets northwest, by a cart driven by an unknown colored boy. Her injuries were slight.

About 6 o'clock last evening a colored girl 5 years old, named Virginia Boswell, was run over by a carriage, driven by two unknown colored men, at Nineteenth and L streets. The injuries were very painful, but not serious.

Must be Sold.
We are now running off our woolen goods at a great sacrifice on account of the heated terms. As we never carry stock from one season to the other, it must be sold. Boys' clothing over 20 per cent. lower than former prices. Eiseman Bros., Seventh and E streets.

The work of protecting the areas about the city which are not included by railroads has been at a dead-lock for a week past on account of a press of business in the Inspector of Buildings' office. Yesterday, however, a report was received specifying fifty-four unprotected areas in the Eighth precinct, and to-day the work of notifying the proprietors of these man-traps was commenced. A large number of notices were sent out, which read as follows:

"Sir: You are hereby notified to enclose the area in front of your premises with a iron railing, not less than forty-two inches high and, inserted in a stone coping, as required by act of May 26, 1875."

Why do not the police authorities sit down upon the abominable and extensive practice of street begging in Washington? Our city is infested with an army of fraudulent solicitors of charity, principally children and mostly girls, who are of a debased and worthless character. They should be sent to the workhouse, or compelled to give up their alms soliciting.

The types yesterday, made us say that Mr. J. Brad Adams had "terminated" business with the Treasury Department. The word written was "transacted." The penman was not Spencerian, however, and the writer of the notice was compelled to share with the printer the responsibility for the amusing error.

The Yorktown Celebration.

The Congressional Commission on the Yorktown Centennial is perfecting arrangements for the forthcoming celebration. The ceremonies beginning October 18, 1881, will be conducted according to the following programme:

October 18, 1881.—The meeting will be called to order by Senator J. W. Johnston, of Virginia, chairman of the Congressional Commission. Prayer. Music by a quartet and a chorus of 100 voices. Introductory remarks by Senator Johnston. Music. Address of welcome by Governor Holliday, of Virginia. Music. Laying of the cornerstone of the monument by Peyton S. Coles, Grand Master of the Masons of the State of Virginia, assisted by the grand masters of the twelve other original States. Music.

October 19, 1881.—Address by the President of the United States. Oration by Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, of Massachusetts. Poem by Jas. Barron Hope, esq., of Virginia. Ode by Paul Hayne, of South Carolina.

October 20, 1881.—Grand review of the military.

October 21, 1881.—Grand naval review in Hampton Roads.

It is believed that the military pageant on the 20th will be the most magnificent of the celebration. It is estimated that 15,000 troops will participate, of whom 4,000 will be troops of the United States army. Two regiments of French troops will also take part. It is not known precisely what military organizations will take part. Thus far the States responding, accepting invitations, have given notice of sending troops as follows: Connecticut, one regiment; Vermont, two companies; Massachusetts, a battalion of four companies; New York, the Thirtieth Regiment, National Guards; New Jersey, a battalion of picked troops; Pennsylvania, three regiments; Delaware, five companies; Maryland, Fifth Regiment National Guards; North Carolina, 1,200 militia; South Carolina, one battalion State troops; Mississippi, several companies; Louisiana, several companies; Michigan, 500 troops; Wisconsin, two companies; Virginia, nearly every military organization in the State. Major-General Getty, U. S. A., will have command of the troops, and Col. H. C. Corbin, U. S. A., will be master of ceremonies. The governors of all the States named above, their staffs and various civic bodies, will be present. The military review will be participated in by the vessels of the South Atlantic squadron, with all other vessels that can be spared in addition.

Suit for Libel.
Mention was made yesterday in THE CRITIC that the grand jury had brought in an indictment for libel against Charles D. Gilmore, of the firm of Gilmore & Co., doing a general claim business in this city. The case is rather peculiar. Mr. Gilmore was formerly a member of the firm of Chapman, Hosmer & Co., the well-known attorneys, Capt. A. A. Thomas, of Kansas, at whose complaint and showing the indictment was brought, was later associated with Gilmore in the same line of business, but, not liking his methods, withdrew. On April 14, 1880, Gilmore was disbarred from practice before the Interior Department by Secretary Schurz on the confession made by a clerk that Gilmore had bribed him, and Mr. Gilmore then brought suit for two million damages against Mr. Schurz, placing his actual damages at $200,000, and his constructive damages at the sum total of his claims. The suit was later withdrawn without trial, and Mr. Gilmore was unsuccessful in trying to be reinstated by Mr. Kirkwood. Captain Thomas brings his charge on the strength of a pamphlet which Gilmore published in March last, in which the former is called all the names in the catalogue, and branded as a blackmailer and fraudulent claim agent. This pamphlet was circulated among the petitions of Capt. Thomas, and hence the suit. The case will be tried when it can be reached.

Crushed to Death.
David A. Bond, colored, was crushed to death last night by the elevator at the Metropolitan Hotel. He was wedged between the wall and the upper portion of the elevator, and was in that position fifteen minutes before he was discovered. A porter who ever was made by the victim, and death must have been instantaneous.

The coroner to-day examined the body of Bond, and this afternoon a certificate of burial for death caused by accident was given, an inquest being deemed unnecessary.

Try Nimm's Chocolate Soda.
It is the best in the world.

Resignation of Superintendent.
Mr. S. S. Daish, Superintendent of the Belt Line Street Railroad Company, has resigned his position. In his letter to the directors of the road Mr. Daish recites the fact that when he took charge of the road the stock was only worth $8, and that now it is worth $30.50; that the property of the road is now in better condition than when he took charge; that the affairs of the company are in prosperous condition. He therefore asked that his salary be fixed at $2,000. The board replied that, while admitting all he stated, in view of the fact of the unsettled condition of the road, pending the present contest between the directors and the stockholders of the line, they declined to bestow the request under advisement. Mr. Daish thereupon resigned. He has been requested by a number of the directors to withdraw his resignation, but he refused to do it.

Sproh's Summer Garden.
This (Saturday) evening an open air concert by a first-class band will be given at the pleasant summer garden of Andrew Sproh, No. 483 street northwest. There is no more delightful place in the city where you can take a glass of beer and smoke a quiet cigar than this restaurant.

District Government Notes.
Mrs. HANNAH GOFFALL has taken out a permit for improvements on her house, 443 New Jersey avenue southeast.

JOHN P. AGNEW & Co. will build a new office at Delaware avenue and H street northeast, for which a permit was taken out to-day.

GEORGE MANSON took out a permit to-day for building a row of three dwellings on E street, between Eleventh and Sixteenth streets northwest, at a cost of $10,500. The houses are to be three story brick and seventeen feet six inches front by a depth of thirty-six feet.

MAJOR TWINING is making a brief stay in New York City on District business.

A CONSULTATION was held this evening between Maj. Brook, Inspector of Buildings, Entwistle, Maj. Morgan, Commissioner Dent and Capt. Vernon to decide whether the proposed station houses, for which the plans have been completed, can be erected without an increased appropriation for the purpose. They were undecided as to whether the work should commence or the plans altered, and the matter is postponed until Maj. Twining's opinion can be obtained.

The Engineer Department during yesterday and to-day ordered the taking up and relaying of nine brick pavements in the city.

PATCHING A TRUCE.

A Meeting Proposed Between Garfield and Grant at Long Branch, What It Means.

A curious piece of political gossip, and, possibly, an important piece of Republican strategy, is connected with the President's visit to Long Branch. The state of the case, as derived from reliable inside sources, is about as follows, and the story is given for what it is worth. For some weeks past, ever since the evident breach between the White House and Senator Conkling over the New York nominations, a select number of Republicans in that State, who are mutual friends of the President, Gen. Grant and Mr. Conkling, have undertaken the job of engineering some sort of reconciliation between these leaders, which would save the destinies of the party in New York. For some time they worked on the still-hunt principle, not clearly seeing just what course to pursue in such a delicate affair. This was in the very beginning of the controversy and nothing had then been done. The manipulators of the plan, however, felt that heroic treatment had to be resorted to after Gen. Grant allowed himself to speak out in meeting about the present incumbent of the Presidency.

The spectacle of ruin for the Republican party that loomed up before these mutual friends, after the General had flung his thunder-bolt, led them to renew their plans for a family reunion.

Anything like a meeting between Conkling and the President was at once abandoned as out of the question. Neither party would consent to this. Their only hope lay in skillfully arranging some meeting between Garfield and Grant, presumably accidental, and then bring all their energies to bear on an interview between these two great magnates, in the hope that some party briars now in the way could be cleared off, and the future look more promising. One of the actors in this game of chess is authority for the statement that no prospect opened up to them until the visit of Gen. Grant to Long Branch was known. Then they got to work. After considerable strategy and wire-working they obtained the President's consent to go there. The impression has been given out that he was to know nothing of the snare into which he was being drawn, but others allege that he was familiar with the plot, but entered into it, because he had no wish to be mulish, and wanted mutual friends to see that so far as he was concerned, nothing should be spared to secure harmony in the ranks. Whether the plan will work or not is still a matter of pure conjecture. The originators of the enterprise appreciate the fact that the President will take no steps backward, but they want him to have a talk with Grant, and see whether some trace for the future can be arranged. There is no doubt that such a meeting has been looked upon by mutual friends. What it will amount to, or whether it will amount to anything, remains to be seen; but the experiment will certainly be tried.
